

JANDONA

The Italian style

Built by one of Italy's leading shipyards, Cantiere di Pisa, after a design by the renowned architect Pier Luigi Spadolini, this yacht from 1968 represents a highlight of Italian yacht design. She represents the end of an era when yachts of this size were still made of wood. The hull was built of three-layer diagonally laid mahogany, a masterpiece of boat building. Also, the interior shows many original design details of the 60s. Despite her age, she offers considerable comfort, such as full air-conditioning, showers, etc. As she has cabins for up to 6 people, she can also be chartered for several days.
